

Mirror, Mirror

Mirror, mirror on the wall,
Who's the fairest one of all?
The mirror looked me in the eye,
And this was his reply:

“Princess, I must tell you true,
there's no one in the world like you.
But those looks aren't paramount.
It's what's inside that really counts.”

Mirror, mirror on the wall,
Who's the thinnest one of all?
The mirror looked me in the eye,
And this was his reply:

“Princess, I can tell no lies,
a princess can be any size.
Stout or skinny, short or tall,
Real beauty can be found in all.”

Maybe I'm not being clear.
There's something that you need to hear.
Don't try to be like someone else.
You're great already. Be yourself.

Look past your hair, your nose, your eyes,
To where the deeper beauty lies.
You'll see the princess right inside,
And that's when you'll be satisfied.

Mirror, mirror on the wall,
Who's the “me”est one of all?
The mirror looked me in the eye,
And this was his reply:

“Princess, you're the only girl
Who's just like you in all the world.
There's no doubt that you'll go far,
By being true to who you are.
